Welcome the Spirit of Advent

BY MONTE NABORS
AND KELLY YATES

Advent is marked by a spirit of expectation, of anticipation, of preparation, of longing. There is a yearning for deliverance from the evils of the world, first expressed by Israelite slaves in Egypt as they cried out from their bitter oppression. It is the cry of those who have experienced the tyranny of injustice in a world under the curse of sin, and yet who have hope of deliverance by a God who has heard the cries of oppressed slaves and brought deliverance!

It is that hope, however faint at times, and that God, however distant He sometimes seems, which brings to the world the anticipation of a King who will rule with truth and justice and righteousness over His people and in His creation. It is that hope that once anticipated, and now anticipates anew, the reign of an Anointed One, a Messiah, who will bring peace and justice and righteousness to the world.

Because of this important truth, especially in the Eastern Orthodox Churches, the Season of Advent has been a time of fasting and penitence for sins similar to the Season of Lent. However, a different emphasis for the season of Advent has gradually unfolded in much of the rest of the church. The season of Advent has come to be celebrated more in terms of expectation or anticipation. Yet, the anticipation of the Coming of the Messiah throughout the Old Testament and Judaism was not in connection with remembrance of sins.

Advent is celebrated as a time of joy and happiness as we await the coming of the King.

Rather, it was in the context of oppression and injustice, the longing for redemption, not from personal guilt and sin but from the systemic evil of the world expressed in evil empires and tyrants. It is in that sense that all creation groans for its redemption as we witness the evil that so dominates our world (Rom 8:18-25). Still, even with Amos' warning the time of Advent is one of expectation and anticipation, a longing for God's actions to restore all things and vindicate the righteous. This is why during Advent we as Christians also anticipate the Second Coming as a twin theme of the season. So, while some church traditions focus on penitence during Advent, the spirit of that expectation from the Old Testament is better captured with a joyous sense of expectancy. Rather than a time of mourning and fasting, Advent is celebrated as a time of joy and happiness as we await the coming of the King.

It is only as we experience that full cycle, beginning with unbridled joy in Advent that slowly fades into the realization of what we have done with and to the Christ, that the awful reality of Good Friday can have its full impact. And in that realization we can finally be ready to hear the Good News on Resurrection Sunday! That is the journey that the disciples took. And so there is value in taking the same journey beginning with the anticipation and joy of Advent!

So, we celebrate with gladness the great promise in the Advent, yet knowing that there is also a somber tone as the theme of threat is added to the theme of promise. This is reflected in some of the Scripture readings for Advent, in which there is a strong prophetic tone of accountability and judgment on sin. But this is also faithful to the role of the Coming King who comes to rule, save, and judge the world.

Because of the dual themes of threat and promise, Advent is a time of preparation that is marked by prayer. While Lent is characterized by fasting and a spirit of penitence, Advent's prayers are prayers of humble devotion and commitment, prayers of submission, prayers for deliverance, prayers from those walking in darkness who are awaiting and anticipating a great light (Isa 9)!

Remembering Pearl Harbor and recognizing the role of Key West

BY JAMES E. BROOKS

NAS Key West Public Affairs Officer

The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor occurred over a half century ago. Those who were alive vividly remember where they were when they first heard news of the attack. Five decades later, "Pearl Harbor Day" still has great symbolic and patriotic significance for many, especially here in Key West.

When the city's 2005 Fantasy Fest was rescheduled to begin Dec. 7, many residents protested the decision. A comparison between Key West and Pearl Harbor in 1941 reveals two island Navy towns with striking similarities. Both cities had expanding Navy bases but the warships at anchor were outdated and showed a nation's lack of preparedness for war. Perhaps it's the similarities that give Pearl Harbor Day greater significance in the southernmost city.

While the Pearl Harbor attack marked America's entry into World War II, preparations for a fight began years earlier. Naval Station Key West was reactivated on Nov. 1, 1939, after being put into a "caretaker status" after World War I. A year later, Naval Air Station Key West at Trumbo Point was reactivated on Dec. 15, 1940. Key West naval activity increased just as it was expanding a half world away in Pearl Harbor.

By December 1941, the Navy had over 900 ships in service although many were built 30 years earlier during World War I. One hundred of those ships were based at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. Here in Key West, the Naval Station had eight submarines and a destroyer moored at Truman Annex piers, in addition to other assorted work vessels.

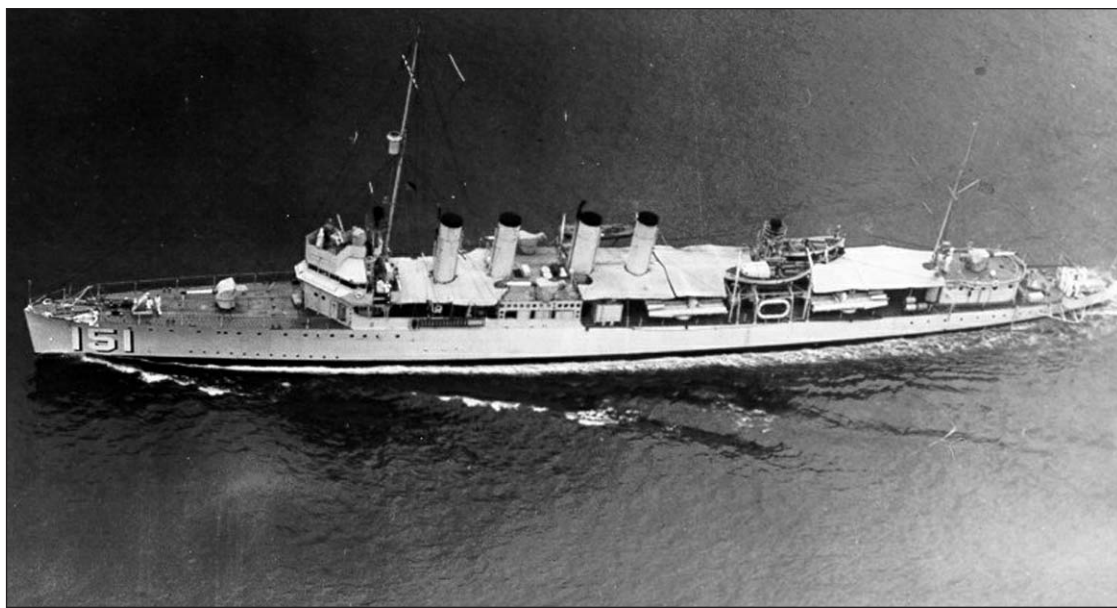

Like the battleships anchored in a row at Pearl Harbor, the submarines and destroyer here were built shortly after World War I and had limited warfighting capabilities for the battles that laid ahead.

Key West-based submarines provided afloat classrooms and trainers for the Atlantic Fleet's Sound (Sonar) School. By winter 1941, the Atlantic Fleet was already at war combating German submarines that had already sunk dozens of merchant ships at an alarming rate. Anti submarine training was a top Navy priority and Key West was destined to become the Navy's premier schoolhouse for honing the skills to find and attack enemy submarines and surface ships. All the submarines based here were all "R-Class" submarines. They were designed and built for World War I battles but completed too late to see service in the "war to end men. With a speed of 12 knots on the surface and nine knots submerged, they could travel 4,700 miles and attack targets with torpedoes or a 3-inch deck gun. Despite their age and lack of combat capabilities for the new war, the submarines made excellent trainers and did conduct local anti submarine ship's four smokestacks) became a familiar site on the Key West waterfront. The destroyer was 314 feet long and had a crew of over 150 sailors. After the attack on Pearl Harbor, Biddle became an armed escort for merchant ship convoys in the Caribbean. Later in the war, German aircraft strafed the destroyer while it

USS Biddle (DD 151) was a familiar site on the Key West waterfront during World War II and was easily recognized by her four smokestacks. Biddle served as an armed escort for convoys moving through the Caribbean. Later in the war, she escorted a convoy to West Africa and earned a battle star when she was strafed by German fighter aircraft.

patrols off the eastern seaboard. With the exception of the R-4 that sank in a training accident, the remaining R-class submarines were decommissioned and sold for scrap metal shortly after World War II ended.

The lone destroyer in port Key West on Dec. 7, 1941 was USS Biddle (DD 151). Like the submarines based here, Biddle was built in 1919 and made several deployments overseas before the Navy decommissioned the warship in 1922. As part of America's preparations for war, Biddle was recommissioned and placed back in service in the fall of 1939. Sent to Key West as part of Destroyer Division 66, the "four stacker" destroyer (called a "four stacker" because of the escorted a convoy to West Africa. World War II ended as Biddle was completing a shipyard conversion and the ship was eventually decommissioned and sold.

Naval Station and Naval Air Station Key West expanded remarkably during the war making the Navy the largest employer in the Keys. Likewise, Pearl Harbor's economy thrived on Navy business. The wartime experiences of two island Navy towns during the war are strikingly similar. Perhaps understanding these similarities brings a greater understanding of the patriotic significance of Pearl Harbor Day to younger generations in the Keys.

Key West was home to eight R-Class submarines like the one shown at left on the morning of December 7, 1941. The R-Class submarine was built during World War I but lacked the warfighting capabilities needed for World War II. The R-class submarines based here were used as afloat classrooms and trainers for the Atlantic Fleet Sound (Sonar) School.

MWR Boys and Girls Club

Fitness Authority is a very popular weekly club at the Boys and Girls Club. It gives youth a chance to play various sports and fitness activities, which encourages a healthy lifestyle with exercise and discussion about proper diet, sportsmanship and cooperation. Both boys and girls participate, all various ages and skill levels.

"Fitness Authority is heart-pounding fun," said Chris Morales, 14, a committed Fitness Authority member. "It is also a chance for kids to play together in different sports activities."

Different participants take leadership roles during each activity, giving every youth an opportunity to win prizes. Youth in high school receive community service hours by assisting in the planning and participating in the weekly activities. Overall, Fitness Authority allows youth to work together and enjoy physical activities, learn about nutrition and have a great time.

-Jaime Peterman

Taking the Boys and Girls Club by storm is the flag football club, "Friday Night Lights."

Many have been showing up at 6 p.m. on Fridays to strut their stuff on the outer football field. The age and skill levels of the kids have been well spread; anyone from the ages of 10 - 18 can participate. "Friday Night Lights" has been a great way for the youths to enjoy physical activity, as well as show off their talents, sportsmanship, and leadership skills. All are invited to join in the fun, or watch your peers as football fever continues to spread throughout the Boys and Girls Club of NAS Key West.

Youths of the Month

September Pre-Teen: ZACH DURAN

Zach is well known for being very helpful around the center when an extra hand is needed. Whether it's a staff member or a peer, Zach is there to lend a friendly hand. He is an active member of the Olympic Club, Friday Night Lights and Torch Club.

September Teen: ROCKY BERRIAN

Rocky is a real leader, and he shows this when working with the younger members in situations where patience is needed. As an active member of the Olympic Club, he assists the staff by keeping the activity under control and making it fun for all. He is a great role model for all members, respectful to staff and peers and fun to be around.

October Pre-Teen: ERIK WORTHINGTON

Erik is a great recruiter for activities around the Club. His enthusiasm and energetic spirit encourages other members to participate. He is a member of the Olympic Club and Friday Night Lights where he helps organize the games and get others to join the fun. He also participates in Power Hour where he helps other members with their assignments.

October Teen: WILL MORALES

Will has the qualities of a leader. He is active in many athletic activities, including Friday Night Lights, Video Game Club and Fitness Authority. He is respectful to staff, and is very helpful recruiting members to participate in games. He gets along with members of all ages, and is especially patient with the younger ones.

'You Drink & Drive. You Lose.' campaign begins on Dec. 10

FROM THE MONROE COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE

The Monroe County Sheriff's Office will be conducting increased DUI enforcement operations during the Christmas holiday season to identify and arrest impaired drivers as part of Florida's "You Drink & Drive. You Lose." DUI enforcement campaign.

Traffic enforcement officers will be concentrating their efforts on drunk drivers throughout the season in an effort to save lives and make this holiday season a safe and enjoyable one for everyone.

Remember: if you drink and drive and get caught, you will be spending the night in jail. Be smart and choose a designated driver who will abstain from drinking and will make sure everyone in your group gets home safely. Another alternative: call a taxi to drive you home. Whatever you choose to do, don't drink and drive.

Have a safe and happy holiday season, from the Monroe County Sheriff's Office.

U.S. Navy to withdraw forces from La Maddalena

NAPLES, Italy (NNS) — In a move to adjust its forces to meet current and future readiness needs in the European theater, the United States and Italy have decided to remove U.S. Navy forces from La Maddalena, Sardinia.

The U.S. and Italian governments are working on a timeline for the withdrawal of forces.

The United States has determined that the capabilities provided by the installation are no longer required due to the realities of the new century's security environment.

The facility was originally built to meet Cold War security threats.

The departure of the Navy will affect approximately 1,800 people employed on the base. Approximately 1,100 are U.S. Navy personnel serving aboard USS Emory S. Land (AS 39) and the associated submarine support squadron. There are an additional 475 military members, 150 local nationals and 75 U.S. Navy civilians employed at the Naval Support Activity. Including family members, there are approximately 2,500 U.S. personnel stationed at La Maddalena.

No decision has been made on a prospective homeport for Emory S. Land, a maintenance and logistics support ship that provides support and repair services to U.S. Navy ships.

Future U.S. requirements will be considered in re-locating resources to support theater-wide transformation and security plans.

The scheduled removal of U.S. forces in La Maddalena is not expected to impact the Navy's mission of providing peace and security in the region.

Federal regs govern gifts

BY GERRY J. GILMORE

American Forces Press Service

As the traditional gift-giving season gets under way, American people, corporations and service groups are showing their gratitude to American service members, especially those who are deployed, in combat zones, or have been wounded.

"The outpouring from the public of goodwill, compassion and recognition for the sacrifices of these military personnel is remarkable and very gratifying," said Stephen Epstein, director of the Standards of Conduct Office within DoD's

Office of the General Counsel.

However, Epstein added, recent misunderstandings that have been reported in the media have surfaced about what can and can't be donated to service members, including those who've been wounded.

Federal gift-giving rules apply to all service members and their families.

In general, military personnel and their family members may accept unsolicited gifts as long as they are not offered because of their official position or from a "prohibited source."

A prohibited source is any person or group that: Seeks official action from the employee's agency; does or seeks to do business with his or her agency; conducts activities regulated by his or her agency; or has interests that may be substantially affected by the individual employee's official duties.

Federal rules define a gift as any gratuity, favor, discount, entertainment, hospitality, loan, forbearance, or other item having monetary value. It also includes services such as training, transportation, local travel, lodging and meals.

"The general rule is that you can't accept gifts from defense contractors," Epstein said, noting such situations may be perceived by the public as attempts to curry favor or influence official decisions. As a result, defense contractors tend to make donations to relief organizations and charitable groups that support

Personal Property numbers

The Personal Property Office (PPO) now has two numbers to call for packouts. 797-4366 and 293-2231. The best way to schedule a packout/in is still to personally stop at the PPO office in the old self-help office at Sigsbee's Housing Welcome Center. The 293-2231 number has an answering machine so please leave a message after hours and we will return your call. We appreciate your patience and hope to better serve you with this additional number.

Pacific Fleet Master Chief

People DO judge a book by its cover

My article this week is about appearance - appearance in uniform and while on liberty - it's something we all need to take a good look at to ensure we are ready to go across the Quarterdeck and go on liberty in a "squared away" status. BE A SHARP SAILOR!

I've always said "good things happen to good Sailors," and I certainly believe that. Whether you sign up for four years or 30, make sure you represent yourself, the command, and the Navy in the best possible light. Invest one hour per week in getting your uniform in top shape and those good things will come to you.

FLTCM (SS/SW)

Two Sailors show up in my office. One is in a bright-white uniform, with sharp creases and bright ribbons. His haircut is obviously one or two days old, and he is freshly shaven. This Sailor's shoes are shined, and he is in shape and stands in front of me with great posture. HOO YA!

The other Sailor's uniform is a dull, creases are missing, his appearance is that he has slept in the uniform and his t-shirt looks as though a rat has been chewing on it. He is in need of a haircut and his shoes have the Hawaiian red dust in every crevice and have obviously never been shined. You can tell he is not within body fat standards and stands in front of me hunched over and staring at his feet.

As unfair as it is, I, like most people, am going to prejudge these Sailors solely based on their professional appearance. Sailor 2 maybe the top in his field, better at his job than anyone else in the Navy, and Sailor 1 may not be very good at his job at all. But with first impressions, I'm not going to think that. I am going to assume that because Sailor 1 takes the time and cares about the way he is presented in uniform, that he shares that same dedication to his job.

It is important when we wake up in the morning and put on the uniform of our great Navy, we strive to keep personal appearance and health as a contributor to mission accomplishment.

Additionally when we head out on liberty in the evening, it's important for us to put our "best foot" forward and ensure we appropriately reflect who we are and who we represent. Civilian attire should be in good taste and appropriate and represent our high military standards.

I think you understand my thoughts on having a sharp uniform, but it goes beyond that.

As unfair as it is, I, like most people, am going to prejudge these Sailors solely based on their professional appearance.

The same goes for haircuts and hairstyles. If two Sailors in fresh-pressed uniforms show up to work and one has a squared-away cut and the other needs some work, then you know who looks more prepared. The Sailor with the squared-away haircut will always appear more top-notch. And the same prejudice exists for overweight Sailors.

While I certainly appreciate the history of tattoos in the Navy, tattoos are something you should really put some thought into prior to sitting in the chair.

Tattoos are a long-term investment that may appear neat or cool but could keep you from getting the job you may want in the future.

(Both in and out of the Navy), I know several personnel that are now in the process of laser removal and based on what I've seen it doesn't peg my "fun meter." So think before you ink!

Additionally a tattoo with any negative affiliation regardless of whether or not it's visible is not tolerated. You simply cannot have tattoos that are prejudicial to good order, discipline and morale, or are of a nature to bring discredit upon the Navy.

And in the same addendum to the uniform policy is the ban on extreme body modifications such as scarring, branding and piercings, along with a ban on dental ornamentation, like gold teeth. Having a Sailor with two gold front teeth and a forked tongue really doesn't present the professional appearance we in the Navy should have.

We work hard and are dedicated professionals, so why let anyone think anything less of us? Why not take the responsibility to look the part of the greatest Navy in the world? Why not spend one hour on Sunday pressing uniforms and getting the whole week's uniforms "ready to go?"

Why not take the time to shave properly and create a neat military hairstyle? Why not chose a different location for that tattoo? Why not take the initiative to look as professional and as good as you really are? Some recommended tips are as follows:

- Review uniform regulations. (training, POD notes, etc)
- Invest one hour per week in getting your uniforms ready for your workweek.
- See MWR or gym for assistance with a personal trainer. Get in shape!

- Use the money allotted to you (uniform allowance) to upgrade your uniforms.
- Review your personal hygiene habits.

Hopefully these tips will assist you. I don't know if those Sailors I'm speaking of are aware that they need help in being squared away, but there are also a lot of people prejudging them solely by their professional appearance. And I really encourage every Sailor to eradicate those prejudices and take responsibility for their appearance and to those under your charge.

I know you are all great Sailors, and I know you work hard in environments that make you dirty or less than appealing. I'm not writing about that, I'm writing about those folks who report for duty in the mornings and start their day in other than a squared-away manner.

We are doing some incredible things that we all need to be proud of, so keep up the good work and make the choice to be proud of your appearance and look like the great Warrior you are. Stay sharp! HOO YA!

Fleet Tip: If you decide to not make the Navy a full-time career, consider the Navy Reserves. See your command career counselor about Reserve Affiliation.

Gifts

the armed forces, he said.

Ethics officials point out that since the rules involve many exemptions and exceptions, military personnel should consult their local judge advocates, legal counsel or ethics officials before accepting gifts.

For example, troops may accept food and refreshments offered other than as part of a meal. They may accept greeting cards, certificates and trophies and other items with little intrinsic value. They also may accept awards and prizes in contests open to the public.

Another exception - commonly known as the $20 rule - applies when gifts (other than cash) from a single source have a market value of $20 or less. However, an employee may not accept over $50 in gifts from the same source in a single year.

Troops may receive discounts from commercial companies if the discount is offered to all government or military personnel. Two of the nation's largest home-improvement retailers, Home Depot and Lowe's, for example, recently recognized Veterans Day by offering discounts for all active-duty military, reservists, retirees and their families.

DoD personnel may not solicit gifts, even for others, unless the solicitation is part of an official fundraising program, such as the Combined Federal Campaign

MEETING OF THE MINDS

Friday Funnies from the Naval Safety Center

Welcome to the latest edition of the Friday Funnies. This week provides more documentation that flip-flops aren't PPE, and that Goofus hasn't joined the retired list yet.

An MA2 and an MA3 were illegally driving on a beach at sunrise one day when they came to some water. The driver slowed as he drove into it, thinking it was a puddle, but quickly got stuck, finding that it was a ditch.

Sailor #1 hopped out to excavate. Looking for some traction before starting to push, he planted his right foot in a thorn bush, which probably would have been excellent traction had he not been wearing flip-flops. He pulled back his leg, leaning hard on his other foot, lost his balance, fell over, twisted his ankle and cut his foot. Sailor #2, wondering what all the hullabaloo was and perhaps fearing his buddy had been attacked by a pre-dawn marauder, jumped out to join the melee. He also found the thorns. He was also wearing flip-flops.

Plus, the truck was still stuck in the ditch.

"Shipmate," Sailor #1 said, "I've had about all of the fun I can stand for one day."

"Aye," Sailor # 2 said.

They managed to free the truck and return to civilization, one to get a couple stitches, the other to get docs to gouge the thorns out of his foot.

An ABH1 had to clean under a 55-gallon drum. You'd think this would be a straightforward task, assuming the drum wasn't filled with concrete, in which case, why would you have to move the darn thing? But it wasn't, so that wasn't an issue. What was filled with concrete, 40 pounds worth, was a pipe on top of the drum, which the Sailor didn't notice.

Until it fell on his hand, that is. Then he noticed it big time, because it broke one of his fingers. He got a month of light duty in which to reflect on just how many things you use your fingers for in the course of a normal day.

Just when I thought that Goofus, Patron Saint of Skylarks, had retired, a trio of new recruits shows up. First, an EN2 was playing around with a shipmate, who picked him up and dropped him on his chin. Second, a sergeant was both intoxicated and wrestling, a bad combo that in this case produced a back injury serious enough to make him lose three days of work and spend a month on light duty. Finally, an AW2 was horsing around with his roommate, fell backwards, and sprained his wrist so badly that he also was on light duty for a month.

Avoid this look!

Know how I can tell members of Goofus's retinue by sight?

By their sheepish expressions. They always know they shouldn't have been screwing around, and the ways they get hurt are always so stupid.

I'm sure there was a great story behind this one, but most of the salient info was, alas, missing from the report. What we have is an E-6, the remains of a 2003 Mitsubishi van (former cash value $26K), and two telling phrases. First, "unauthorized use of government vehicle while on liberty." Second, "failure to control speed."

Sounds pretty juicy to me. All that's missing is most of the what and when, and all of the why.

That's all for this week, shipmates. Until next time, remember-life is simpler when you plow around the stump.

Remembering Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day

The surprise was complete. The attacking planes came in two waves; the first hit its target at 7:53 a.m., the second at 8:55. By 9:55 it was all over. By 1 p.m. the carriers that launched the planes from 274 miles off the coast of Oahu were heading back to Japan.

Behind them they left chaos, 2,403 dead, 188 destroyed planes and a crippled Pacific Fleet that included eight damaged or destroyed battleships. In one stroke the Japanese action silenced the debate that had divided Americans ever since the German defeat of France left England alone in the fight against the Nazi terror.

Approximately three hours later, Japanese planes began a daylong attack on American facilities in the Philippines. Farther to the west, the Japanese struck at Hong Kong, Malaysia and Thailand in a coordinated attempt to use surprise in order to inflict as much damage as quickly as possible to strategic targets.

Although stunned by the attack at Pearl Harbor, the Pacific Fleet's aircraft carriers, submarines and, most importantly, its fuel oil storage facilities emerged unscathed. These assets formed the foundation for the American response that led to victory at the Battle of Midway the following June and ultimately to the total destruction of the Japanese Empire four years later.

Text of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Infamy Speech

December 8, 1941

Yesterday, December 7, 1941 - a date which will live in infamy - the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan.

The United States was at peace with that nation and, at the solicitation of Japan, was still in conversation with its Government and its Emperor looking toward the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. Indeed, one hour after Japanese air squadrons had commenced bombing in Oahu, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States and his colleague delivered to the Secretary of State a formal reply to a recent American message. While this reply stated that it seemed useless to continue the existing diplomatic negotiations, it contained no threat or hint of war or armed attack.

It will be recorded that the distance of Hawaii from Japan makes it obvious that the attack was deliberately planned many days or even weeks ago. During the intervening time the Japanese Government has deliberately sought to deceive the United States by false statements and expressions of hope for continued peace.

The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. Very many American lives have been lost. In addition American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas between San Francisco and Honolulu.

Yesterday the Japanese Government also launched an attack against Malaya. Last night Japanese forces attacked Hong Kong. Last night Japanese forces attacked Guam. Last night Japanese forces attacked the Philippine Islands. Last night the Japanese attacked Wake Island. This morning the Japanese attacked Midway Island.

Japan has, therefore, undertaken a surprise offensive extending throughout the Pacific area. The facts of yesterday speak for themselves. The people of the United States have already formed their opinions and well understand the implications to the very life and safety of our nation.

As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense.

Always will we remember the character of the onslaught against us. No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory.

I believe I interpret the will of the Congress and of the people when I assert that we will not only defend ourselves to the uttermost but will make very certain that this form of treachery shall never endanger us again.

Hostilities exist. There is no blinking at the fact that our people, our territory and our interests are in grave danger.

With confidence in our armed forces - with the unbounded determination of our people - we will gain the inevitable triumph - so help us God.

I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December seventh, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire.
